New Message

To Our Loyal Readers

Subject FROM YOURS TRULY (the founder) 🌸

To the Solucky Family,

New year, new beginnings. Issue #25 - Winter 2025 marks the start of an exciting year for Solucky. We're entering a new era of growth, creativity, & opportunity, fueled by our talented core team & the incredible community that supports us. A heartfelt thank you to everyone who's been a part of this journey - you are a reflection of the brand!

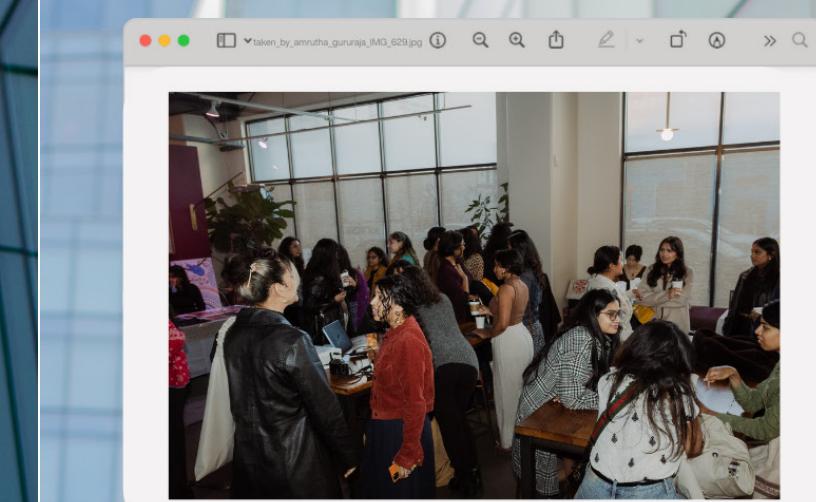

This issue comes with some exciting updates. Recently, we co-hosted The Chai Room: Bay Area Edition - a space where creativity & comfort meet. It was an opportunity for South Asian womxn creatives to connect, sip chai, & support local businesses.

As we evolve, we've reimagined our content schedule & are shifting to seasonal issue releases, allowing us to refine each issue & dive deeper into our projects. We're also expanding with new merchandise, paid collaborations, & a new website launching in May 2025. The website will provide a richer experience & more ways to engage with Solucky's growing community. In addition, we've already had exciting trips to New York & Southern California, bringing us closer to you. Thank you for your unwavering support - we're ready to create something extraordinary together in 2025!

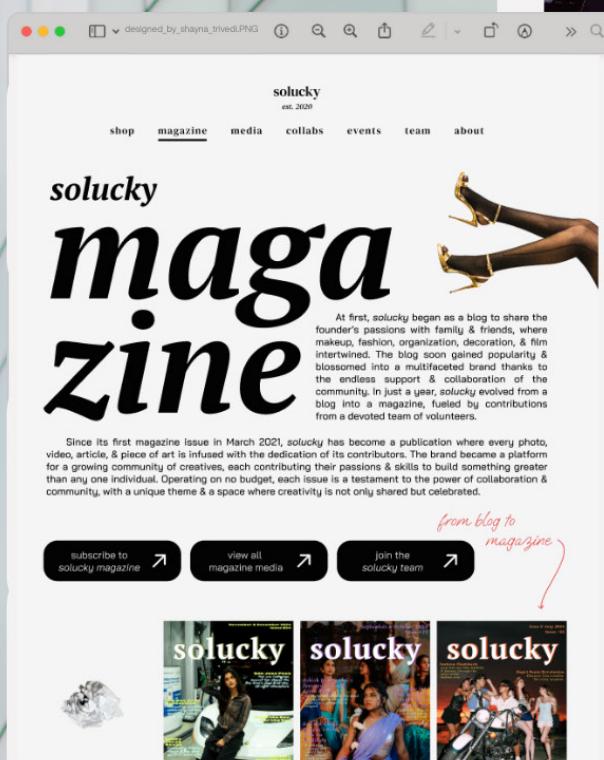

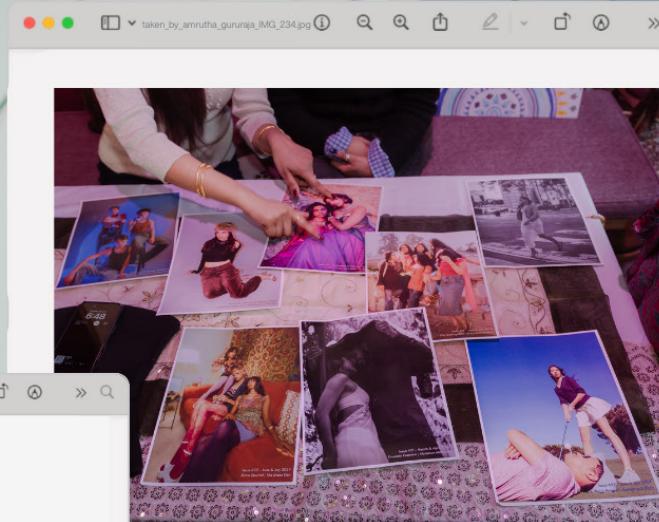

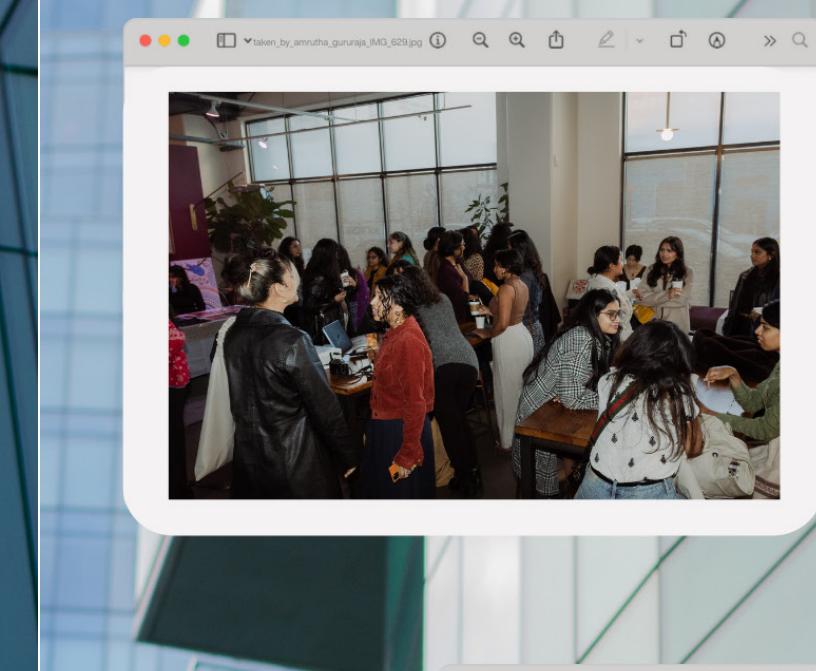

Here's to the future,
Founder of Solucky,
Sanjana Solanki <3

Subject NEW ADDITIONS: Office Siren Finds, Under $25 🎉

Hi Fashionistas,

If power dressing is your language, our latest drop speaks it fluently. Think fitted trousers, satin blouses, structured blazers, & statement accessories - all made to turn heads from the boardroom to the bar. This is your sign to build that dream wardrobe. With pieces from Issue #13 to Issue #25, most items are under $10 & nothing over $25.

It's giving luxury, without the price tag.

Follow us on Instagram @solucky.life for the latest drops, restocks, & exclusive updates. Questions? We're only a message away.

With style,
The Solucky Team

Subject SPECIAL EDITION: Dark & Beautiful (abridged version) 😊❤️

Dear Reader...From One Brown Girl to Another,

I skipped down the grocery aisle with my grandma close behind. The Indian supermarket always fascinated me, & I could never contain my excitement as she sifted through packets of flour & rice.

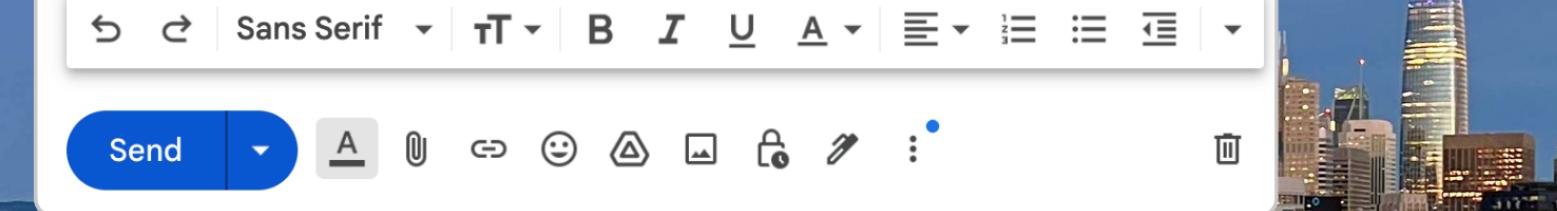

"Oh, perfect! Just what we needed, Hiba," my grandmother exclaimed, gently placing one of the boxes from my hand into the cart. I studied the box, scratching my head. A woman with jet-black hair & almond-shaped mahogany eyes stared back at me. With curious, innocent eyes, I read the label: "Fair & Lovely: Skin-Whitening Cream."

"Look at yourself, my dear. That's exactly why we're getting it."

Over time, I began to question why fairness was a prize to be won. Why my skin was a measure of my worth. As I matured, I embraced my natural skin as the color of the Earth - sacred hues of the forest & beautiful shades of dusk & dawn.

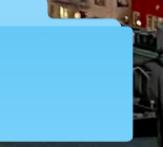

Ten years later, I was back with my grandmother, this time pushing the cart. As I scanned the bustling store, a familiar figure caught my eye. I looked at her, as she lured at me; & surprisingly, with peace, I smiled.

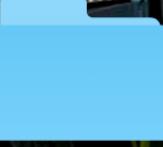

With roots deep & skin unbothered,
Hiba Siddiqui
